

transitions

Burke to Byron,
Barbauld to Baill
1790-1830

Jane Stabler

Contents

General Editor's Preface	vii
Acknowledgements	ix
Introduction	x
1. 1790: Reflections of Revolution	1
• Ann Radcliffe, A Sicilian Romance (1790)	1
• Edmund Burke, Reflections on the Revolution in France (1790)	16
• William Blake, The French Revolution and The Marriage of Heaven and Hell (1790)	30
2. Romantic Drama	46
• Joanna Baillie, A Series of Plays (1798)	49
• Joanna Baillie, De Monfort (1798)	56
• Byron, Manfred (1817)	64
• August von Kotzebue, Lovers' Vows adapted by Elizabeth Inchbald (1798)	78
• Charles Lamb, Lord Byron and transitions in audience taste	81
• Transitions in audience expectations: Lamb's and Byron's attitudes to women and children	87
3. Romantic Poetry	99
• Eighteenth-century theories of transition	99
• Wordsworth and Coleridge, Lyrical Ballads (1798; 1800; 1802; 1805)	104
• William Wordsworth, The Prelude (1799; 1804; 1805; 1850)	114
• John Keats	116
• Moving away from the 'Big Six'	121

• Anna Barbauld and Samuel Taylor Coleridge: poetic experimentation	123
• Links between technological and imaginative experimentation	133
• Charlotte Smith	135
• Anna Seward	138
• Mary Robinson	141
• John Clare	143
• Percy Bysshe Shelley	146
• Lord Byron: the Romantic poet's challenge to the reading public	149
4. The Romantic Novel and Non-Fictional Prose	158
• Prose battles in the 'pamphlet wars': Burke, Paine, Mackintosh, Williams, More and Wollstonecraft	159
• William Godwin, Caleb Williams (1794)	174
• Mary Shelley, Frankenstein (1818): links with the Jacobin novel	180
• Mary Wollstonecraft, Maria; or, The Wrongs of Woman (1798)	182
• Matthew Lewis, The Monk (1796)	187
• Jane Austen, Sense and Sensibility (1811) and Persuasion (1818)	192
• Prose journals, fragments and confessions: Dorothy Wordsworth, Samuel Taylor Coleridge and Thomas De Quincey	200
5. 1830: Time for Change	211
• Felicia Hemans, Songs of the Affections (1830)	220
• William Cobbett, Rural Rides (1830)	233
• Walter Scott, Tales of a Grandfather and Letters on Demonology and Witchcraft (1830)	245
• Byron, Werner (1822 and 1830)	251
Chronology 1790-1830	265
Glossary of Key Concepts and Contexts	278
Annotated Bibliography of General Books on Romanticism	283
Bibliography	288
Index	310