

Christopher Pollitt

Exploring the third world of academic life: What can academics who study governance offer to politicians and public servants who practice governance?

Presentation at the Hans Sigrist Symposium,
University of Bern, 3 December 2004

KPM-Verlag
Bern

Contents

1	The academic contribution to practice: a third world?.....	3
2	What can academics offer to practitioners? A naïve model.....	5
2.1	Why do practitioners want academic advice, if not to tell them something new?.....	5
2.2	Why do practitioners want academic advice, if not to fix problems?.....	6
2.3	What kinds of knowledge can academics offer that might be useful to practitioners?.....	6
3	Final reflections and pointers to further debate.....	11
4	Acknowledgements.....	15
	References.....	17