

Business and
Economic Ethics
The Ethics of Economic Systems

Arthur Rich

With an Introduction by Georges Enderle

PEETERS
LEUVEN – PARIS – DUDLEY, MA
2006

TABLE OF CONTENTS

VOLUME I: Foundations from a Theological Perspective

Foreword	5
Foreword to the Fourth Edition	7
I. Preliminary Questions	9
1. The Bi-Dimensionality of the Fundamental Ethical Question	11
2. Directions of Research and Main Schools of Thought in Ethics	17
2.1 Directions of Research	17
2.1.1 Descriptive Ethics	17
2.1.2 Normative Ethics	19
2.1.3 Metaethics	19
2.2 Main Schools of Thought in Normative Ethics in their Internal Problematic	21
2.2.1 Empiricist Ethics	21
2.2.2 Norm or Principle Ethics	23
2.2.3 Casuistic Ethics	25
2.2.4 Situation Ethics	27
2.2.5 The Ethics of Conviction	30
2.2.6 The Ethics of Responsibility	31
2.3 Preliminary Summary	34
3. Basic Aspects and Main Fields of the Ethical	37
3.1 The Relationship Field of Ethics	37
3.1.1 The First Basic Relationship: I-Self (The Individual Aspect)	38
3.1.2 The Second Basic Relationship: I-Thou (The Personal Aspect)	38
3.1.3 The Third Basic Relationship: I/We-It (The Ecological Aspect)	42
3.2 The Basic Relationships in their Institutional Mediation	45

3.2.1	The Institutionalizing Effect in the I/We-It Relationship	46
3.2.2	The Institutionalizing Effect in the I-Thou Relationship	48
3.2.3	The Institutionalizing Effect in the I-Self Relationship	50
3.3	The Main Aspects of Ethical Responsibility and their Integration in Social Ethics	52
3.3.1	Individual Ethics	53
3.3.2	Personal Ethics	55
3.3.3	Environmental Ethics	57
3.3.4	Social Ethics	59
3.4	Business and Economic Ethics as a Special Case of Social Ethics	61
II.	Foundational Considerations	63
4.	Social Ethics in the Context of the Social Sciences	65
4.1	The Relationship to the Social Sciences	65
4.2	Economic Rationality and Human Justice	70
4.3	The Problem of the Normative in the Social Sciences . .	76
4.3.1	The Natural Law Approach	77
4.3.2	The Approach of Critical Theory	80
4.3.3	The Approach of Critical Rationalism	83
4.3.4	The Approach of Gerhard Weisser's Normative Social Science	88
4.3.5	Conclusions	93
4.4	Methodological Consequences	95
5.	Humanity originating from Faith, Hope, and Love	99
5.1	The Horizon of General Human Experience Rooted in Faith, Hope, and Love	99
5.2	The Experience of Evil	102
5.3	The Experience of the Totally Other	109
5.4	The Specifically Christian in the Humanity originating from Faith, Hope, and Love	116
5.5	The Specifically Christian and the Generally Human in the Humanity originating from Faith, Hope, and Love .	121
6.	The Theological Approach	125
6.1	The Eschatological Dimension of the Humanity originating from Faith, Hope, and Love	125

6.2 The Absolute and the Relative in the Problem Field of Theological Ethics	129
6.2.1 The Transcendental-Eschatological Approach (The Early Karl Barth)	130
6.2.2 The Creation-Theological Approach (Emil Brunner)	138
6.2.3 The Christological Approach (The Late Karl Barth)	147
6.2.4 The Historical-Theological Approach (Theology of Revolution or Liberation)	154
6.2.5 The Existential-Eschatological Approach (The New Way)	159
6.3 The Three Levels of Social-Ethical Argumentation . . .	167
7. Criteria of the Humanly Just and their Orientation towards Social Justice	169
7.1 The Basis of the Humanly Just	169
7.2 Explication of the Criteria of Human Justice	170
7.2.1 The Criterion of Creatureliness	170
7.2.2 The Criterion of Critical Distance	176
7.2.3 The Criterion of Relative Reception	178
7.2.4 The Criterion of Relationality	181
7.2.5 The Criterion of Fellow-Humanness	189
7.2.6 The Criterion of Fellow-Creatureliness	191
7.2.7 The Criterion of Participation	193
7.3 Human Justice Originating from Faith, Hope, and Love and Social Justice	198
7.3.1 The Criteria of Human Justice as Conditions of Social Justice	198
7.3.2 Social Justice as a Permanent Duty of the Hoping Love of Faith	199
7.3.3 John Rawls' Theory of Justice from the Perspective of the Criterial Requirements of Human Justice from Faith, Hope, and Love	204
7.3.4 Guidelines for Social Justice	214
8. Social-Ethical Maxims	221
8.1 The Formal Aspect of Maxims	221
8.2 The Principal Steps in the Formation of Maxims	223
8.2.1 Demonstration of the Problem	223
8.2.2 Examining Existing or Postulated Concepts of Analysis	224
8.2.3 Norm-Critical Clarifications	224
8.2.4 Determination of the Guidelines	225

8.2.5 Critical Examination	226
8.3 The Maxims' Claim to Validity	227
8.4 On Dealing with Biblical Maxims	232
8.5 The Distinctive Characteristic of Christian Social Ethics .	240
 Bibliography	 243

TABLE OF CONTENTS

VOLUME II: Market Economy, Planned Economy, and Global Economy from the Perspective of Social Ethics

Foreword	267
1. The Question of Meaning in the Economy	269
1.1 The Ethical Dimension of the Question of Meaning in the Economy	269
1.2 The Question of Meaning in the Economy as the Question of Human Justice in the Economy	273
1.3 The Criteria of the Humanity Originating from Faith, Hope, and Love as Guidelines for Clarifying the Question of Meaning in the Economy	275
1.3.1 The Fundamental Purpose of the Economy	275
1.3.2 The Humane Purpose of the Economy	277
1.3.3 The Social Purpose of the Economy	282
1.3.4 The Ecological Purpose of the Economy	286
1.3.5 The Relationality of the Purposes	290
1.3.6 The Question of Meaning in the Economy within the Area of Tension between the Relative and the Absolute	295
2. Aspects and Perspectives of the Modern Industrial Economy	299
2.1 What is the Economy?	299
2.2 Industry and Industrialization	301
2.3 The Process of Industrial Rationalization	305
2.3.1 Rationalization as a Basic Phenomenon of the Economy	305
2.3.2 Product-Oriented Division of Labor	306
2.3.3 Production-Oriented Division of Labor	308
2.3.3.1 Production-Oriented Division of Labor under the Conditions of Mechanically-Aided Rationalization	308

2.3.3.2	Production-Oriented Division of Labor under the Conditions of Electronically-Aided Rationalization	314
2.3.3.3	Specific Effects and Possibilities in the Field of Production	318
2.3.4	Socially and Economically Relevant Consequences of the Process of Industrial Rationalization for Human Persons	326
2.4	The Factors of Production	329
2.4.1	On the Taxonomy of Terminology	329
2.4.2	An Overview of the Factors of Production	331
2.4.2.1	The Factor of Land, or Nature	331
2.4.2.2	The Factor of Labor	333
2.4.2.3	The Factor of Capital	337
2.4.3	The Question of Determining the Relationship between "Capital" and "Labor"	340
2.5	Economic Subjects	342
2.5.1	Producers	342
2.5.2	Consumers	348
2.5.3	The State	351
2.6	Industrial Economy as the Economy of Markets	355
2.6.1	The Concept and Morphology of the Market . . .	355
2.6.2	The Multiplicity and Borderless Expansion of Markets	358
2.6.3	Multinationalization	361
2.7	Economic Growth	371
2.7.1	The Magnitude and Stimuli of Economic Growth .	371
2.7.2	Industrial Capitalism	377
2.7.3	Quantitative and Qualitative Economic Growth .	380
2.8	The Double Face of the Industrial Economy	384
3.	An Analysis of the Principal Problems in Business and Economic Ethics	389
3.1	Fundamental Questions of Economic Order	389
3.2	Ethical Implications of the Three Fundamental Questions	390
3.2.1	Ethical Implications of the First Fundamental Question (What and how much should be produced?)	390
3.2.2	Ethical Implications of the Second Fundamental Question (How should goods and services be produced?)	392

3.2.3	Ethical Implications of the Third Fundamental Question (For whom should goods and services be produced?)	394
3.3	Principal Ethical Problems in View of the Question of Ordering the Economy	397
3.3.1	The Fundamental Problem	397
3.3.2	The Problem of Efficiency	398
3.3.3	The Problem of Human Justice in the Economy	399
3.3.4	Human Justice from the Perspective of Fellow- Humarmess	400
3.3.5	Human Justice from the Perspective of Participation	401
3.3.5.1	Participative Cooperation	402
3.3.5.2	Participative Distribution	404
3.3.5.3	A Participative Global Economy	416
3.3.6	Human Justice from the Perspective of Fellow- Creatureliness	420
3.3.6.1	Stabilization of Population	421
3.3.6.2	Stabilization of Demands	423
3.3.6.3	Stabilization of the Environment	424
3.3.7	Human Justice from the Perspective of Relationality	427
3.3.7.1	Relationality of the Basic Values	427
3.3.7.2	The Relationality of Human Justice and Economic Rationality	429
4.	Basic Economic Systems	435
4.1	Preliminaries	435
4.1.1	Transition	435
4.1.2	"Economic System" and "Economic Order": Demar- cation of Terminology	435
4.1.3	Theories of Economic Systems	436
4.2	The Basic System of the Market Economy	439
4.2.1	On the Concept of the Market Economy	439
4.2.2	The Coordination System of the Market Economy (Order through Competition)	441
4.2.2.1	The Basic Principle	441
4.2.2.2	The Economic Subject or Planner	441
4.2.2.3	Market-Economic Coordination	442
4.2.2.4	The Actually Existing Market Economy	446
4.2.2.5	The Coordination Dilemma	452
4.2.3	The Limitations of the Market Economy	455
4.2.4	Relativization of the Market Economy	461

4.3	The Basic System of the Centrally Planned Economy . .	463
4.3.1	Terminology	463
4.3.2	Beginnings and First New Approaches of the Theory of Central Planning in Marxism-Leninism	463
4.3.3	The Coordination System of the Centrally Planned Economy (Order through Central Planning) . . .	469
4.3.3.1	The Basic Principle	469
4.3.3.2	State Collective Property and Central Planning	470
4.3.3.3	State Economy and Power Monopoly of the Communist Party	472
4.3.3.4	Economic Subject and Planner	473
4.3.3.5	Problems of Coordinating in the Centrally Planned Economy	474
4.3.4	The Limits of the Centrally Planned Economy . .	483
4.3.5	Relativization of the Centrally Planned System	486
5.	Evaluation and Decision Maxims for the System Question in the Economy	489
5.1	On the Concept of Maxims	489
5.2	Basic Considerations for Finding Maxims	490
5.2.1	Basic Considerations from the Perspective of Human Justice	490
5.2.1.1	Self-Interest and Common Good	491
5.2.1.2	Adam Smith's Concept of the Market Economy	492
5.2.1.3	Basic Conditions of the Reception of the System	496
5.2.2	Basis Considerations from the Perspective of Economic Rationality	498
5.2.2.1	The Question of the Convergence of the Decentralized Market System and the Centralized Planning System	498
5.2.2.2	Delimitation of the Relativization Principle of the Convergence Thesis	503
5.2.2.3	Fundamental Possibilities of Combining Market and Plan	505
5.2.2.4	Market Modification of the Planned Economy	506
5.2.2.5	The Plan-Modified Market Economy . . .	513
5.3	Maxims	520

6. Maxims for Evaluation and Decision-Making Regarding the Question of Order in Economic Systems	525
6.1 Preliminary Remarks	525
6.2 Categories of Order within the Market-Economy	526
6.2.1 The Capitalist Market Economy	526
6.2.2 The Social Market Economy	536
6.2.3 The Democratic Market Economy (The Swedish Model)	545
6.2.4 The Socialist Market Economy	554
6.2.4.1 The Western Type of the Socialist Market Economy	554
6.2.4.2 The Eastern Version of the Socialist Market Economy	559
6.2.5 Humanly Reformed Market Economy (Ota Sik's Human Economic Democracy)	565
6.2.5.1 Macro-Economic Plan of Distribution . .	566
6.2.5.2 Democratic Planning Decisions	568
6.2.5.3 Sik's Ownership Reform (Collaborative Companies)	570
6.2.5.4 Problems	575
6.2.6 The Ecologically Regulated Market Economy . .	579
6.2.6.1 The Fundamental Problem	579
6.2.6.2 The Ecology-Oriented Economy	581
6.2.6.3 Elements of an Ecology-Oriented Regulatory System of the Market Economy	583
6.2.6.4 Unanswered Questions	587
6.3 Some Basic Ideas about Finding Maxims Regarding the Problem of Order in the Economy	589
6.3.1 Some Basic Thoughts on the Aspect of Economic Rationality	590
6.3.2 Some Basic Reflections on What is Humanly Just .	594
6.3.2.1 Principal Issues	594
6.3.2.2 Weighing the Options	598
6.4. Maxims	612
7. The Global Economic Outlook	619
7.1 Preliminary Remarks	619
7.2 Global Challenges for the Market Economy	620
7.3 Basic Conditions for Participative Cooperation in the Global Economy	625
7.3.1 Participative Debt Redemption	625

7.3.2 Participative Market Order	631
7.3.3. Requirements for Developing Countries	633
7.3.3.1 Requirements with Regard to the Economic Efficiency of an Economic System	633
7.3.3.2 Requirements in View of the Social Effi- ciency of an Economic System	634
7.3.3.3 Requirements in View of the Ecological Efficiency of an Economic System	635
7.3.3.4 Order-Political Requirements	636
7.4 Global Economic Market Regulation: A Problem in Need of Solution	637
7.5 Maxims	641
8. Epilogue	645
Bibliography	653