

Timothy Fort
Editor

Peace Through Commerce

A Multisectoral Approach

Previously published in the Journal of Business Ethics
Volume 89 Supplement 4, 2009

 Springer

Contents

T.L. Fort / Peace through commerce: a multisectoral approach	1–4
J. Oetzel, M. Westermann-Behaylo, C. Koerber, T.L. Fort and J. Rivera / Business and peace: sketching the terrain	5–27
K.A. Getz and J. Oetzel / MNE strategic intervention in violent conflict: variations based on conflict characteristics	29–40
D. Mayer / Peaceful warriors: private military security companies and the quest for stable societies	41–55
V. Haufler / The Kimberley Process Certification Scheme: an innovation in global governance and conflict prevention	57–70
M. Westermann-Behaylo / Institutionalizing peace through commerce: engagement or divestment in South African and Sudan	71–88
T.M. Nielsen and L. Riddle / Investing in peace: the motivational dynamics of diaspora investment in post-conflict economies	89–102
J. Forrer / Locating peace through commerce in good global governance	103–114
C.P. Koerber / Corporate responsibility standards: current implications and future possibilities for peace through commerce	115–134
I. Abramov / Building peace in fragile states – building trust is essential for effective public-private partnerships	135–148
P. Tashman and V. Marano / Dynamic capabilities and base of the pyramid business strategies	149–168
B. Penh / New convergences in poverty reduction, conflict, and state fragility: what business should know	169–182
M. Strong / Peace through access to entrepreneurial capitalism for all	183–192
N.D. Bishara and C.A. Schipani / Complementary alternative benefits to promote peace	193–211
L. D’Amore / Peace through tourism: the birthing of a new socio-economic order	213–222
S.E. Levy and D.E. Hawkins / Peace through tourism: commerce based principles and practices	223–239
G. Smith, A. Cahn and S. Ford / Sports commerce and peace: the special case of the special olympics	241–256
M. Lavine / From scholarly dialogue to social movement: considerations and implications for peace through commerce	257–268