

WHAT LIFE COULD MEAN TO YOU

The Psychology of Personal Development

alfred adler

Edited by Colin Brett

CONTENTS

FOREWORD by Rita Vdall	9
1 THE MEANING OF LIFE	15
The three tasks of life	16
Social feeling	19
Formative childhood experiences	22
Physical disadvantages	24
Pampering	25
Neglect	26
First memories and dreams	28
The importance of learning to co-operate	30
2 MIND AND BODY	33
The interactions of mind and body	33
The role of feelings	41
Mental characteristics and physical types	48
3 FEELINGS OF INFERIORITY AND SUPERIORITY	52
The inferiority complex	52
The goal of superiority	58
4 EARLY MEMORIES	69
Keys to the personality	69
Early memories and life styles	71
Analysing early memories	73

5	DREAMS	86
	Dream-interpretation in the past	86
	The Freudian view	87
	The approach of Individual Psychology	90
	Reinforcing the life style	90
	Symbols and metaphors	93
	Common dreams	97
	Some case studies	98
6	FAMILY INFLUENCES	107
	The role of the mother	107
	The role of the father	114
	Attention and neglect	121
	Equality between siblings	124
	The family constellation	125
	The eldest child ¹	125
	The second child	128
	The youngest child	130
	The only child	131
7	SCHOOL INFLUENCES	135
	The changing face of education	135
	The role of teachers	136
	The importance of character training	137
	The teacher-child relationship	138
	Interesting children in learning	139
	Co-operation and competition in the classroom	140
	Assessing children's development	142
	Nature versus nurture	144
	Recognizing personality types	147
	Some observations on teaching	150
	The work of advisory councils	152
8	ADOLESCENCE	156
	What is adolescence?	156
	The psychological dimension	156
	The physical dimension	157
	The challenge of adulthood	158
	Some adolescent problems	159
	The pampered child	159
	Clinging to childhood	159
	Petty crime	159
	Neurotic behaviour	160

Contradicting expectations	160
Seeking praise and approval	161
Adolescent sexuality	163
The masculine protest	164
Our formative years	165
Anticipating adolescence	166
 9 CRIME AND ITS PREVENTION	 168
Understanding the criminal mind	168
The human striving for superiority	168
Environment, heredity and change	169
Childhood influences and the criminal life style	170
The structure of the criminal personality	173
Crime, insanity and cowardice	175
Criminal types	177
Some case histories	177
The importance of co-operation	183
Personality, life style and the three tasks	184
Early influences on co-operation	187
Family environment	187
Poverty	188
Physical disadvantages	188
Social disadvantages	189
Solutions to the criminal problem	190
The ineffectiveness of corporal punishment	191
Training in co-operation	192
Some practical measures	194
A preventive approach	196
 10 THE PROBLEM OF WORK	 198
Balancing the three tasks of life	198
Early training	200
Home and school influences	200
Correcting potential mistakes	201
Geniuses and early striving	202
Nurturing talents	203
Identifying children's interests	203
Childhood declarations	203
Early memories	205
Play-acting	205
Some influences on career choice	206
Looking at solutions	207

11 THE INDIVIDUAL AND SOCIETY	209
The human striving for unity	209
The role of religion	209
Political and social movements	210
Lack of social interest and the failure to relate	211
Self-interest	211
Mental disorders	212
Criminal negligence	216
Social interest and social equality	216
12 LOVE AND MARRIAGE	219
The importance of love, co-operation and social interest	219
An equal partnership	221
Preparation for marriage	223
Life style, parents and attitudes to marriage	223
The importance of friendship and work	224
Sex education	225
Influences on partner choice	226
Commitment and responsibility in marriage	227
Common evasions	228
Courtship	231
Making marriage work	232
The physical side of marriage	232
Monogamy, hard work and realism	233
Solving marital problems	235
Marriage and the equality of men and women	237
GLOSSARY OF KEY TERMS	239
SELECTED BIBLIOGRAPHY	241
INDEX	242